I've noticed some articles in Over the Edge seem like they could be AI-generated. Can you clarify your stance on AI usage and explain how you ensure the content is original and student-driven?

Yes, we use AI tools at Over the Edge, but our student journalists drive every story. AI helps with grammar, transitions, and flow, but the ideas and content are entirely student-created. We're still learning how to best use these tools and value reader feedback as we refine our process. Student journalism remains at the core of what we do!
